

BRAND TONE ENFORCER

Complete Brand Guidelines for System Prompt Task

YOUR TASK: Using ONLY the brand guidelines in this document, write a system prompt for an AI brand tone enforcer. The AI must rewrite any off-brand copy submitted to it so that the output perfectly matches the Noir Espresso brand voice described below. Your system prompt must be thorough enough that a language model with no prior knowledge of Noir could enforce the brand correctly.

■ TIME LIMIT: 15 minutes | This document is your ONLY source of truth. Do not invent brand rules not stated here. Your system prompt will be tested against the 5 test cases at the end of this document.

1. Brand Overview

Noir Espresso Co. is a luxury coffee brand operating across UAE, KSA, Qatar, Egypt, and the UK. Average product price: AED 95–220. The brand is positioned as a quiet, confident purveyor of exceptional coffee — not a lifestyle brand, not a wellness brand, not a tech brand. Just coffee, done right.

The brand's audience are connoisseurs: people who already know what they like and don't need to be sold to. They respond to substance over spectacle. They distrust hype. They appreciate when a brand treats them as intelligent adults.

2. The Four Tone Pillars (Core Brand Voice)

REFINED, NOT PRETENTIOUS

Language is precise and elevated without being exclusive or condescending. We use correct coffee terminology (extraction, terroir, single-origin) because it's accurate — not to show off. We never make the audience feel they don't know enough.

- Write with specificity: 'Ethiopian Yirgacheffe, washed process' not 'exotic African coffee'
- Use sensory language: describe taste, texture, aroma with precision
- Avoid gatekeeping language: 'only the truly discerning' is off-brand

WARM, NOT CASUAL

We are welcoming and human. We are not cold or corporate. But we maintain dignity — we are not a friend texting you, we are a trusted host welcoming you. There is always a sense of occasion, however small.

- Use 'you' directly and warmly — address the reader as an individual
- Avoid slang, filler words, and over-casual punctuation
- No exclamation marks used for emphasis or excitement — ever

CONFIDENT, NOT ARROGANT

We state our quality as established fact, not as a claim to be proven. We do not need to compare ourselves to anyone. We do not attack, belittle, or position against competitors. Our confidence is quiet.

- State what we are, not what we aren't
- Never name competitors or allude to 'other brands' negatively
- Avoid unverifiable superlatives: 'the best', 'world's finest'

POETIC, NOT PURPLE

We use evocative, sensory language — but sparingly and deliberately. One strong image per piece of writing is powerful. Three metaphors stacked on each other is purple prose. Edit ruthlessly.

- One metaphor or poetic image per caption/paragraph maximum
- Avoid stacking adjectives: 'rich, bold, velvety, smooth, complex' is too much
- Silence and space are part of the voice — short sentences are powerful

3. Absolute Rules — These Are Non-Negotiable

#	Rule	Reason
R1	NEVER use exclamation marks (!) for emphasis or excitement	Desperation and hype are off-brand. Exclamation marks are allowed only in direct quotes
R2	NEVER use urgency language: 'hurry', 'don't miss out', 'limited time', 'act now', 'selling fast'	Manipulation, artificial scarcity, and quiet confidence. Our audience dislikes being pressured
R3	NEVER use generic quality claims: 'quality', 'best', 'premium', 'luxury', 'exclusive', 'handmade'	These phrases are meaningless and used by every brand. We are specific, not generic.
R4	NEVER use casual internet language: 'vibe', 'set the mood', 'quickly and easily', 'stay in', 'no cap', 'less said is soonest' positioning.	The set words date quickly and don't stay. Our timeless, refined positioning.
R5	NEVER use more than 2 emoji in any single sentence	Emojis are almost always off-brand for Mr. When used, keep to approved set only.
R6	NEVER make health or wellness claims: 'boosts energy', 'improves focus', 'good for you'	We sell pleasure, not promises. No unsubstantiated health benefits. Unsubstantiated claims
R7	NEVER use ALL CAPS words for emphasis (e.g., 'THIS IS A SHOWSTOPPER')	All caps reads as shouting and is incompatible with our understated, confident tone.
R8	NEVER use multiple exclamation marks (e.g., '!!!') or multiple question marks (e.g., '????')	Same as R1. Multiple exclamation marks or multiple question marks for emphasis or excitement through punctuation is off-brand.

4. Channel-Specific Rules

Channel	Word Limit	Emoji Limit	Hashtags	Special Rule
Instagram Caption	120 words	Max 2 (approved set only)	Max 5	Poetic opener — no 'Introducing...' or 'Check out...'
Instagram Story	15 words	Max 1	None	One idea only. Use imperative sparingly.
LinkedIn Post	200 words	None	Max 3	More informational tone acceptable. Still no hype.
Email Subject Line	8 words max	None	N/A	Intriguing, never clickbait. No 'You won't believe...'
Email Body	300 words max	None	N/A	Warm but purposeful. One clear CTA, gently phrased.
Product Description	80 words max	None	N/A	Sensory + specific. Lead with taste/aroma notes.
SMS / WhatsApp	20 words max	Max 1	None	Feels like a personal note, not a broadcast.
Blog / Long-form	No limit	None	N/A	Educational tone. May go deeper on craft/origin.

5. Before & After Examples — Study These Carefully

These examples illustrate the transformation your AI enforcer must be able to perform. Note that on-brand rewrites are not just 'quieter' — they are MORE specific, more sensory, and more confident, despite using fewer words.
